About the podcast

THE VOICE OF AGING

The Voice of Aging is a podcast dedicated to helping families understand and navigate the realities of aging. Through practical advice, expert interviews, and compassionate conversations, the show addresses topics including caregiving, dementia, hospice, retirement planning, senior living, family dynamics, and legacy preparation.

The podcast serves adult children of aging parents, family caregivers, older adults, and professionals who support the senior community.

FULL BIO

Brynne Malone is the founder of Aging Solutions and host of The Voice of Aging podcast. With more than 25 years of experience in aging advising and advocacy, he is dedicated to helping older adults and their families navigate the complexities of aging with dignity, independence, and peace of mind.

Throughout his career, Brynne has built extensive experience in the financial investment industry, retirement planning, legal advocacy, and healthcare services. He has served as a power of attorney and conservator, represented individuals living with dementia, and guided families through complex financial, legal, and care-related decisions. His work has also included helping retirees and veterans understand and navigate healthcare benefits and services.

Today, Brynne combines decades of professional expertise with compassion and practical solutions to help older adults and their families prepare for the future and avoid unnecessary crises. Through Aging Solutions and The Voice of Aging podcast, he educates, advocates, and empowers families to make informed decisions throughout every stage of the aging journey.
